My mental To-Do list seems to grow longer everyday. I come across feature requests all the time, and ideas often pop into my head. But when I arrive at my office each morning, I often ask myself, "what was that feature I was about to start work on yesterday?" So, here is a To-Do list of sorts to keep my absent-minded self organized and efficient (I hope).

- Filter users by group
- Finish new diff format
- Layout by group (like layout by section)
- Improve forums
- Wiki change moderation
- Default category (new pages will be placed in the default category if no category is selected by creator)
- redirect to static pages if serverload is above threshold
